HELPFUL IDEAS FOR TAKING ON THE MEALTIME CHALLENGE.

Food Sensitivities

Did You Know?

Gluten is a protein found in wheat products. When gluten proteins are moistened, they become a flexible network. Basically, gluten is the reason why dough is elastic. It is estimated that 1 in 133 people suffer from celiac disease. Celiac is an auto-immune disorder that can only be treated by eliminating gluten from the diet. In those with celiac disease, consuming gluten causes inflammation in the small intestines. Symptoms can include diarrhea, bloating, abdominal pain, but also fatigue and headaches.

The lactose content of one glass of whole milk is 12 grams.
What is the lactose content of one slice of cheddar cheese?

Find answer in the second March edition.

Nutrition Nugget

If you are lactose intolerant, you may still be able to digest dairy products other than milk: yogurt, cheese, cottage cheese, and butter. Pay attention when purchasing commercial sour cream and frozen yogurt. These products may have added milk solids which are high in lactose.

Family Play Time

Want a fun and healthy snack idea for you and your children? Try frozen grapes! Keep a lookout for grapes on sale. Wash them and flash freeze all your grapes on a baking tray. Once frozen, store them in your freezer in baggies. Now whenever your family craves a sweet snack, you can enjoy mini popsicles. Not only are they delicious, but these little frozen drops are full of vitamins and low in calories. Your kids will love making and eating them.

Homemade Almond Milk

- 1 cup raw almonds
- water for soaking nuts
- 3 cups water
- 2 dates (optional)
- 1/2 tsp vanilla (optional)

Soak the almonds in water overnight or for at least 6 hours. Drain the water from the almonds and discard. Blend the 3 cups of water, almonds and dates until well blended and almost smooth. Strain the blended almond mixture using cheesecloth or other strainer. Homemade raw almond milk will keep well in the refrigerator for 3 or 4 days.

What Can I Do Today?

Do you suspect your child may have a food allergy or food intolerance? In addition to visiting your health provider, start keeping a food diary. Pay attention to symptoms like diarrhea, stomach aches, headaches, runny nose, nausea, hives, itching and tingling mouth. Record every food consumed and watch for any symptoms.
